"GOD SAVE IRELAND" THE CRY.

TWELVE OF THE IRISH MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT EXPELLED.

A Rowdy Midnight Scene and a Day Following of Suppressed Excitement—The Big Job of the Police in Putting Out the Irishmen.

London, March 7.—The great excitement occasioned last night in the British House of Commons, when twelve Irish members were forcibly removed, is still evident when the House met to noon today. In view of the possible disturbance the whole police force is on duty.

Immediately after the proceedings had begun Redmond rose to a question of privilege arising from the painful scenes of last night. He said members had been suspended without proper steps having been taken to identify them, and that their removal was accompanied by undue violence. The speaker interrupted by saying that Redmond was not raising a question of privilege but a point of order. If he, the speaker, were properly informed of any wrongful suspension he would be glad to take steps to rectify it.

Redmond subsequently tried to move for adjournment and appealed to the Balfour members to give members an opportunity for discussion. Balfour, assuming that it was desired to institute means of preventing a recurrence of the scenes of last night, promised to consider what opportunity for discussion should be given. The subject was then dropped.

During the discussion of Redmond's motion John Dillon arose and mentioned that members who had not challenged the ruling of the chair had never-the-less been suspended.

LAST NIGHT'S OCCURRENCE.

After midnight in the House of Commons, Mr. Balfour applied the closure on the education estimates. The Nationalists shouted, "Gag! Gag!" and refused to leave the House when the division was taken. The chairman then reported the matter to the speaker. The speaker finally asked if the members still refused to obey the order and there were cries of "Yes! yes!" The speaker then named 16 recalcitrants and Mr. Balfour moved their suspension. This was agreed to without division. The speaker ordered them to withdraw, but they refused amid great uproar. The speaker called upon the sergeant-at-arms to remove them. They shouted defiance. Officers and policemen then entered to enforce removal.

Mr. Eugene Cran, member for South-east Cork, struggled desperately against removal and there was quite a free fight on the floor lasting for five minutes, other Irish assisting them. Eventually he was carried out bodily by six policemen, amid yells and cheers.

The police then returned and carried out each of the remaining recalcitrants in the same manner. Six policemen sufficed for each member, with the exception of Mr. Flavin, who is a big man and required eight. Many as they were being carried out waved their hands and shouted, "God save Ireland."

Who Will Dedicate West Market Church?

The Methodist people are asking themselves whom they shall get to dedicate West Market church in case the debt is raised by Easter Sunday as proposed some time ago. The magnificent church structure has never been dedicated, owing to the fact that there has all the time remained a small debt on it. This the members purpose to liquidate, and then have a dedicatory service that will be memorable. It is intended that a member of the college of bishops be secured if possible to hold the services.

The church will most certainly be fortunate if it can secure Bishop Morrison's services. The magnificent sermon will be preached on Sunday of Conference week, is yet talked of. It was an inspiration, and some one suggests that the Bishop would no doubt be of greater service than any other who could be secured.

A BATTLE GROUND NOVEL.

"When Blades are Out and Love's Afraid" Announced by a Big House.

The people of Greensboro, after having so long and lovingly labored for the Battle Ground cause, should find peculiar pleasure in the notice that is now being taken of the subject of the battle far and wide throughout the country, all of which comes from the the patriotic labors of beautifying and caring for the battle field. Stories of this battle are now a fad with the magazines and papers, and even a book is now announced by the big publishing house of Lippincott & Co. The name, "When Blades are Out and Love's Afraid," is itself romantic, and the publishers make the following announcement of it:

"A typical novel in Mr. Brady's best style this,—a tale of war and love in Revolutionary times. The scene is laid in the country around Greensboro, North Carolina, and the chief action is that known as the Battle of Guilford Court House, when General Greene met Cornwallis and inflicted such damage upon the seasoned troops of the latter, that though technically victorious, he was forced to fall back upon Wilmington, and the British advance into the south was checked. "The day after the battle" writes Mr. Brady, "abandoning the severely wounded to the Americans, Cornwallis without baggage and supplies, gave up the field he had so gallantly contested and obtained, and began that march towards the coast, which threw him into the arms of Washington and de Rochambeau at Yorktown. Greene immediately re-occupied the field and dispatched Lee and Colonel Washington to harass the retreating British soldiery." So much for the flashing blades Mr. Brady knows so well how to depict."

The city book-stores will have the book on hand and it should be a popular one with Greensboro readers.

Now You See It, Now —

Last night Herrman amused a big audience. He is a slick number, but introduced no new or startling tricks. The musical section of the program in which the fine musicians appeared in picturesque costume was fine indeed, and was highly applauded by the audience, who called the quintette back again and again. The cremation trick was not near so spectacular as might have been expected. The favorite white rabbit trick was done with great clearness. Perhaps the oddest thing was the production of a drove of ducks from a tub of water in which the magician dropped the requisite number of eggs.

The audience immensely enjoyed the whole performance, and if the Professor would brush up on his English a little he would be the whole thing.

He Got His Saw.

Fires excite some people and some people they do not. One of the latter class is a saw mill man from near Kernersville who was in the city yesterday to buy a circular saw. He had selected one from the stock of the Odell Hardware Company, and the clerk who had waited on him was packing the saw when another clerk ran down from up stairs, shouting that the upper floor was on fire. The clerk packing the saw dropped his tools and began to carry buckets of water, while the man who wanted the saw calmly kept on working not even so much as looking up when the crowds of people almost overran him in their efforts to get to the fire. He unconcernedly finished his job and got his saw.

Dr. McIver's Request.

News and Observer.

President McIver, of the State Normal and Industrial College, stated that the regular annual appropriation was $25,000 per year to pay the faculty and expenses. There is a debt of $25,000 largely caused by the fever epidemic. Then the other needs are $12,500 for a practice and observation school, $10,000 for a gymnasium, making, including the regular appropriation, $72,500 the first and $25,00 for the second.

JUDGES APPEAR BEFORE SENATE

THEY PRESENT A HUGE DOCUMENT AS THEIR ANSWER.

The Paper Contains Over Fifteen Columns of Matter and is Admirably Drawn—The House in Committee of the Whole Talks Revenue.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, March 7.—Nearly the whole of the House session was devoted to the revenue bill in committee of the whole.

At noon the House board of managers for the impeachment trial, followed by Guthrie, Watson, Davidson, C. M. Busbee, and Pou, of their attorneys, entered the Senate. A moment later the indicted judges, Douglas and Furches, followed by their attorneys, Jarvis, Osborne, Bynum, Fab Busbee, Long and Patterson, entered.

Then the reading of the Judges' reply to the articles of impeachment indictment immediately began. It is over fifteen columns in length, and admirably prepared. The closest attention was paid by all present.

Last night after long debates the Committee on Education decided to recommend:

1. That $200,000 be appropriated from the State Treasury for public schools.
2. That of this sum $100,000 be appropriated on a per capita basis and $100,000 to the weaker districts until each district shall have a four-months' school.

The details of the method by which this amount is to be applied to the schools of the State has been put into the hands of committee consisting of Senators Henderson and McIntyre, representatives Simms, Smith and Ross.

These gentlemen will today draft a bill embodying in it the features of the bills presented by Senators Smith, of Johnson; Travis, of Halifax; Representatives Simmons, of Wake, Smith of Gates, and Ross, of Randolph.

Shot Through the Heart.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Shelby, March 5.—There was a homicide in No. 1 township, eleven miles from Shelby, last night. A man named Hutchins became intoxicated, got lost by missing the road and found his way into the yard of Clayton Humphries. The dog found him and gave him battle. Hutchins commenced shooting at the dogs. Humphries' son went out into the yard to quiet the dogs when Hutchins fell upon him and ran him back into the house. The dogs and Hutchins had another battle in which Hutchins came off victorious. After running the dogs from home Hutchins proceeded to break down the door of Humphries' house. Humphries took down his old squirrel rifle and fired at Hutchins, the bullet taking effect in Hutchins' heart. Hutchins fell back in the yard dead.

Mr. Humphries is one of the best citizens of this county and is well known for his uprightness and his extreme quietude. He is a very peaceable and law-abiding citizen. The coroner and jury held an inquest over the dead body today and gave a verdict of justifiable homicide. Hutchins had a pistol in his hand when he was shot.

New Residents.

Mrs. Mary Sikes, mother of Mr. Archer Sykes, who has been with Mr. Howard Gardner for some months, has moved to the city from Fayetteville. She will occupy one of Dr. Crawford's new houses, with her sons. Mr. John Sykes, another son comes with her, 1 naliwdgsffe -). ETAOINT with her, and will also be with Mr. Gardner. Mr. Eugene Sykes has recently accepted a position with Mr. C. E. Holton, as has been mentioned.

The North Greensboro W. C. T. U. will meet Thursday afternoon at 3:30 in the usual place.

Telegraphic Briefs Today.

The cause of the failure of John L. Searles, the Sugar King, is said to be an endorsement of a note of $10,000 for a friend, which Searles was unable to meet. The liabilities are believed to be between one and two millions.

It is announced today that the expenses of the inauguration were $75,000, which the committee can easily meet. The inaugural ball netted $40,000.

The new Spanish ministry was announced today.

The disappearance of the cashier of the Freeport, Pa., bank, leaving a shortage of $2,500, caused a run on the bank which was promptly stopped.

A Paris dispatch says that the explosion at Urus, in which twelve persons were killed, was caused by a workman striking a case of gun cotton with a hammer.

A Dive Into Coal Dust.

Just after the seven o'clock train pulled in last night from the north a breathless messenger pulled up at the depot and informed Officer Alexander that there was a dead man at the crossing of Davie street and the railroad. The officer hurried down there and found no dead man, but he found a young man from Reidsville who was stunned and bruised from a dive he had made from the moving train into the coal dust. The man whose name was Farmer, said that he had been asleep on the train, and as it came by Davie street, he thought it had reached a platform and so walked out and stepped off. He dropped on his face and was badly stunned. Conductor Wells saw him step off and soon as his train stopped he went back to look after him. The young man went back home at noon today, not having been seriously hurt.

Says He Was Waylaid.

Last night about dark a colored boy named Will Watson, who drives the delivery wagon for Mr. C. W. Jennings, carried a wagon load of stuff to the store at Proximity, and when returning came through a road a little to the north of Summit avenue. He reported that as he drove past a large tree, two white men sprang out and stopped him, telling him to get out of the wagon, and the negro, a boy of about fourteen or fifteen years of age, promptly tumbled from the wagon. Just what purpose the men had in view is not known for at that moment a couple of negro men came up and the white men ran off. It is thought that the men expected to find the money for the recently delivered load on the boy's person. So scared was the boy that he failed to show up this morning, and Mr. Jennings is minus his driver.

Fire at a Dangerous Time.

A phone message was received by the Eagle Hose Company this afternoon to come out to Cedar street, that the fields were on fire and it was feared that with the high wind blowing much property might be lost. The field immediately in the rear of Merriam's factory and between Cedar street and the railway were burned, the flames going as far north as Mr. Alley's residence. The firemen got pine brushes and together with those already engaged in their work when they arrived, beat out the fire.

A passing train, it is thought, set fire to the broom sedge, and the high wind blowing, scattered it quickly. No serious damage was done.

Caught Robbing a Postoffice.

Fletcher Erwin, colored, is in jail here charged with robbing the post-office at Gibsonville. The case against him is said to be a strong one as he was seen taking money from the office. The robbery occurred last Saturday.

There is always some body with an eye peeled for the main chance. This morning a man struck town selling "Carrie Nation souvenir hatchets," as appears elsewhere in our advertisements.

HIGH POINT HAS A BIG FIRE.

ONLY THE FAVORABLE WIND SAVED THE BUSINESS PART OF TOWN.

Fire Originated About 2 O'clock in the Edwards House and Swept Everything to the Ragan and Millis Brick Stores.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

High Point, March 7.—Fire broke out here at two o'clock this afternoon in the grocery and confectionary establishment of J. A. Fraley, under the Edwards House, owned by Dougan Davis, on the corner of Main and Hamilton streets. The fire originated from a peanut parcher. The building was a large frame one and on its first floor there were several stores.

The contents of the Edwards House and the stores under it, of Charles Morris, Alf Fraley, E. C. Lovelace and the shoe store of McLewellen and Albertson, were a complete loss. Next came the store house of John Suits, occupied by Steed & York, confectioneries, which was also lost. Those next in order were the restaurant of Thos. Best, Edmundson's barber shop, the grocery store of Campbell & Co., the large livery stable of J. C. Welch, Younts and Campbell's meat market, another barber shop, Kennedy Bros., and Morris, groceryman. Here the fire stopped, as it came in contact with the large brick buildings owned by Messrs. Ragan and Millis. The warehouse of Mr. Tom Kirkman was destroyed, while the main part of the store was saved.

The loss will be large, but can't be estimated at this time. For awhile it seemed that the whole business part of the town was doomed, but favorable winds helped to change the course of the fire. The burned district is about one eighth of a mile in length.

A STRANGE CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

George Johnson, a White Man, Who Was Confined Eight Years as Another Man.

Yesterday's Raleigh special to The Telegram mentioned the fact that the Senate had appointed a committee to investigate the case of one Johnson who claims that he has been wrongly imprisoned by the State authorities for the past eight years. A Raleigh letter to the Atlanta Constitution tells the story as follows:

An extraordinary case of mistaken identity has just been developed here before Justice Montgomery, of the Supreme court, in the case of George Johnson, a young white man who has been confined in the penitentiary for the last eight years.

Fifteen years ago a young white man by the name of Christopher Betchler was convicted in Shelby, N. C., of an aggravated case of stealing, and was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary in this city. Betchler was the son of German parents who had resided for many years in the town of Rutherfordton. His father, August Betchler, was a jeweler. After gold was discovered in Rutherford, Burke, and McDowell counties, in 1848, old man Betchler was authorized by act of congress to coin gold dollars, and he bought the dust from the miners and coined it into dollars as high as the fifty-dollar piece. "A. Betchler" was stamped on each coin.

After the war the Betchler family moved to Spartanburg, S. C. There were several sons and daughters. "Chris," as he was called, turned out to be the "black sheep" of the flock. After he was sent to the penitentiary he remained there two years and then made his escape.

In 1893 Captain J. M. Fleming, who was warden of the penitentiary when Chris Betchler was received there, and who held this position in 1895, was in attendance on the superior court of Randolph county, as a witness. While there a man known as George Johnson was the plaintiff in a case which involved the title of 700 acres of land on which gold in considerable quantity had been found. Fleming saw this man and made inquiries concerning him, and found that he had located in Randolph county some time during 1888. It was in 1887 that Betchler escaped from the penitentiary. Fleming was positive that Johnson was "Chris" Betchler and so stated. On the trial of the land case Johnson was asked if he was not "Chris" Betchler, and if he had not been convicted of stealing in Shelby in 1885 and sentenced to the penitentiary for ten years, and had escaped therefrom in 1887? Of course Johnson denied bitterly all this and said he was an entirely different man from Betchler. The defendants in the land case had Johnson arrested as an escaped convict. Johnson sued out a writ of habeas corpus but could not produce any witness beside himself to disprove the positive assertion of Fleming that he was "Chris" Betchler, and the Judge refused to discharge him and ordered that he be returned to the penitentiary. The arrest and decision of the judge caused Johnson to lose the land suit. As soon as Johnson reached the penitentiary he sent for a lawyer but had no money to pay him. He gave the lawyer address of a number of people in Montgomery county and that of a man in Atlanta, whom he said knew him and would swear he was not Betchler. The lawyer wrote twice to each of these parties and did not receive an answer to a single letter that he wrote. The failure to have his letters returned or to receive an answer from either of the parties to whom he had written did not impress the lawyer in favor of Johnson and he gave no more attention to the case.

Four weeks ago Col. Ceburn L. Harris, a man of seventy-nine years of age, who formerly resided in Rutherfordton and knew the Betchler family well, went to the penitentiary to examine the manufacture of brick which is carried on inside the stockade. While in the yard he saw a tall white man at work and inquired who he was and was told that it was "Chris" Betchler. Colonel Harris then asked and was allowed to talk with the prisoner. He stated to Colonel Harris the facts herein stated as to his identification as "Chris" Betchler and asked Harris if he knew Betchler. Harris replied that he had known the family for fifteen years before the war and while they lived in Rutherfordton. He was then asked if he, the prisoner, was "Chris" Betchler, and Harris unhesitatingly declared that the prisoner was not Betchler. A lawyer was then employed and another writ of habeas corpus was issued by Justice Montgomery and the prisoner was then brought before him. Captain Fleming sworn that he believed the prisoner to be "Chris" Betchler, and that he had known him as a prisoner in the penitentiary for the two years that he was in the penitentiary. That he had escaped and remained at large until 1893, when he was arrested at Asheboro and returned to the prison, and that the resemblance of the prisoner to Betchler was very striking. Colonel Harris was then put on the witness stand and told of the young boy "Chris" Betchler he had known before the war for fifteen years; how he had seen him grow up to be a man, and that he knew him perfectly well and could not be mistaken, and the prisoner before the court was not "Chris" Betchler, and that since he had seen the prisoner in the penitentiary he had thought the matter over and had talked with his wife about the case, and that there was a test that would certainly show whether the prisoner was Betchler. Harris then asked the prisoner to exhibit his right leg above the ankle for examination. The prisoner complied with this request and Harris made an examination and said that the prisoner was not "Chris" Betchler because Betchler had the scars of a bad dog bite on his right leg which he received when he was not over ten years old, and that Harris had killed the dog. On this evidence Justice Montgomery discharged the prisoner from further imprisonment.

The attorney of Johnson is now awaiting a decision of the supreme court in another case as to whether the state's prison is such a corporation as can be sued. If this decision is to the effect that the state's prison can be sued the attorney of Johnson intends to sue for a large sum in damages, for the false imprisonment, which lasted eight years.

WINE OF CARDUI

A SURE MEDICINE.

HANDSON, VA., Dec. 31.

I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and Black-Draught have done more for me than anything else.

MRS. CAROLINE EVANS.

Wine of Cardui

It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the female organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. ## SAMPSON TO WRITE A BOOK.

A Boston special to the Baltimore American says that "driven to desperation by the broadside of public criticism of his action in the now famous Gunner Morgan case, added to the Schley controversy, Admiral Sampson began work on an official autobiography for the purpose of setting himself right before the world. He denied himself to visitors, and your representative was informed by an orderly that the Admiral was busy on his memoirs and could not be seen. His friends say he has not yet decided whether to publish the volume at once or to follow Tallyrand's example and have it issued a century after his demise. The work will embrace all his correspondence with the navy department subsequent to the Spanish war, so as to vindicate his honor in both the Morgan and Schley cases."

We have believed all along that the miserable Sampson-Schley controversy was more the work of others than the principals in it. Hard things have been said of each of these men that should not have been said, and Sampson has been held up as a man seeking to rob others of their honor. After all this growing unpopularity the flame was fed afresh by his unfortunate remarks about the promotion of men from the ranks. The remark was unfortunate more from the possibility of misconception than from the opinion it really expressed. That it was a proposition of general truthfulness may not be denied.

But if Sampson does write a book he had better keep it unprinted, for attempted self-vindication is certain to arouse additional antagonism, and the public will never believe anything but what it wants to until it gets ready to change its mind of its own free will.

Recent suggestions appeared in this paper from correspondents advising that a general local option dispensary law be passed, in accordance with which a community might vote at its own pleasure on the question of whether or not it would have a dispensary. Such a bill has been introduced and was yesterday referred to a sub-committee of the House committee on propositions and grievances. This bill should pass. It will avoid the everlasting fights before the Legislature in which each party is always accused of taking a short cut. The fight for and against dispensaries appears to be up for a considerable spell in the State and a law to localize the contentions, under rules just to each party, is much better than having neighborhood linen laundried each two years before the entire people of the State.

A New York man who has been living in Paris for two years, has been killed in a duel with a Russian count, because he had written a letter to the count's wife. Of course he had to get out of Paris to get killed in a duel.

THE MURDER OF MRS. FOOTE.

Atlanta Constitution.
Deputy Sheriff J. R. Carroll, of Jefferson county, Ala., left yesterday morning for Birmingham with Arthur R. Foote, the youth who is charged with the murder of his mother.

The deputy was disappointed when he reached Atlanta Saturday night, as he fully expected to hear that Arthur had made a full confession and told the whole story of the crime at Bessemer. He made an attempt to get the prisoner to talk, and when the boy still stuck to his plea of innocence, the deputy exclaimed:

"Well, I am shipped out."
What the deputy meant by that could not be surmised. The officer at the police barracks understood him to insinuate that he had but little evidence without the youth's confession. A representative of The Constitution had a talk with Deputy Carroll, and the Jefferson county officer said he had expected to get young Foote to confess.

"We had some trouble arresting Charles A. Foote, the boy's father," said the deputy sheriff, "and if I hadn't put the handcuffs on him I believe I would have been called upon to shoot him. He was very unruly and wanted to fight. He seemed to think that I was responsible for his arrest. I was on the coroner's jury that held the inquest over Mrs. Foote, and we did not render a verdict until two days ago. The murder of Mrs. Foote was one of the worst crimes ever committed in Jefferson county. She was found lying half under a cook stove, with three ugly gashes across her throat. It was impossible for her to have inflicted the wounds herself, and the jury quickly discarded the suicide theory. There had been a murder committed, and we took a little time to try to ascertain who the murderer was. We at last rendered a verdict implicating the husband and son."

EVIDENCE AGAINST HUSBAND AND SON.

When asked what evidence they had against the two prisoners, Deputy Carroll replied:

"The murder was committed some time after 12 o'clock noon. The husband and son were at dinner, and they do not deny that fact. We found on the table, which was in the kitchen where the woman's body was found, a partially eaten meal, the plates and food looking as if they had been left very hurriedly. The jury believed Mrs. Foote had been killed while that meal was going on. Charles Foote and his son acted in a very suspicious manner, not making any effort to aid the officers to locate the murderer, declaring it was a suicide. But they could give no earthly reason why the woman should want to take her own life. They left for Atlanta with the body and the boy never returned. The father reached Bessemer on Saturday, I think it was, and instead of his seeking the officers to learn what progress had been made in the investigation, he dodged us. He kept out of my way and out of the way of the chief of police, not once speaking."

"You have no positive or direct evidence then?" the deputy was asked. "Well, yes, we have," he replied. "The butcher, Johnson, for whom young Foote worked, told the jury that he saw blood on the boy's face and hands when he returned to work after dinner."

As stated in yesterday's Constitution, it is alleged that if the father and son are guilty, the motive for the murder was insurance on Mrs. Foote's life for $4,000. Arthur Foote has declared that his mother's life insurance was less than $200.

Mrs. Foote was a Miss Mandy Wright, a daughter of Arthur Wright, of Carroll county, this state.

There are several bright women in New York who make a good livelihood by finding flats for people. By making it a regular profession they accumulate a knowledge of city houses that is of great value. To none are they more welcome than to nervous mothers and busy housewives who wish to change their residence, but dislike the preliminary necessity of calling at a hundred places in order to find a satisfactory apartment. The most successful representative of this new calling, speaking of her experience, said to-day:

"Real estate agents are peculiarly interested in leasing property, and invariably give rose-tinted views to all applicants. Tenants themselves are just as hard to deal with. One will not live on a block where there is a saloon, another must be within a reasonable distance of a good public school, between which and her house there must be no street railway. A third desires a north and south location, and a fourth can live nowhere but in a corner apartment."

"Beyond these are the limitations respecting rent, neighborhood, the proximity of factories and churches, the equipment of the building, the right to keep dogs in the apartment, the number of children and babies in the building, the presence of musicians in the same house or next door."

"I get fairly well paid for my labor and receive from $1.50 upwards for reports. I make regular commissions from several brokers, especially those who have a fine list of customers. I have two busy seasons corresponding to the moving days in May and October."

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by C. E. Holton.

NO RIGHT TO UGLINESS

The woman who is lovely in face form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and run down, she will be nervous and irritable. Electric bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at C. E. Holton's drug store.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of static or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

He wore a heavy blue reefer and carried a coarse burlap bag that was much the worse from wear. After depositing the bag under the feet of those on the platform he calmly sucked the yellow end of an unlighted cigarette butt. Something in the bag moved and the conductor was curious, says the Chicago Daily News.

"Rabbits?"
"Naw! A cat."
"Going to take it off somewhere and lose it?"

"Yes, the river is a good dump as any. Down will go the bag and the old tomcat will make a hole in the soft mud."

The blond and brunette sitting near the door had heard it all. Big tears came rolling down their cheeks. "W-what y-you going to d-drown the poor c-cat for?" stammered the blond, and then she just broke down and sobbed loud enough for all to hear.

"Well, it's this way, miss," said the youth in the reefer: "Mrs. Finnegan comes down to our flat and says: 'Jimmy, do you want to make a quarter?' 'Sure!' says I. 'Do you want another ton of coal basketed up to your flat?' 'Naw, Jimmy,' says she, 'I want you to drown a cat.' 'What?' says I, dropping me codfish and looking surprised. 'Yes,' says she, 'I want you to take our old Tommy down to the river. He's got in the habit of jumping on the table and drinking the baby's milk and the old man won't stand it.' Well, miss, I never took no sport in drowning cats, but quarters are scarce, and that's how it happens."

The brunette said something in the blond's ear. There was a hasty unclasp of pocketbooks and two green notes reached the youth in the reefer.

"Now give us the poor cat," said the blond. "We will give him a good home."

"Sure!"

The youth in the reefer shifted the bag in and then hopped off at the next corner.

"Oh!" cried the brunette, as she opened the bag and peeped in cautiously.

"What kind of a cat is it?" asked the blond.

In response the brunette shook the bag and the contents hopped across the car. It was a crippled chicken.

"Oh, that young villain has deceived us. That is the cat we paid to save. Come, get off!"

"One moment!" said the conductor: "you will have to take the chicken and bag with you."

The last laughing passengers saw of the embarrassed youth, they were heading for a vacant lot.

Claims Alaska Will Be to United States What South Africa is to England—Predicts Gold Output of $15,000,000 in 1901.

"The output of the Alaskan gold fields for 1901 will be fully $15,000,000," said Lyman S. Ailes, of Seattle, who left Nome City on October 25, at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, the other night. "Alaska will soon be to the United States what South Africa is to England," continued Mr. Ailes. "One of the vexatious things which the miners had to contend with this year was the interminable squabbles over claims. The overflow of miners from the Klondike struck us last spring and settled on claims already staked. In some cases they would rename creeks and drive new stakes, and the original owners have been fighting thousands of these cases in the courts all the year. The gold output for 1900 would have been much larger but for this. The beach claims at and near Nome have been worked out, but back on the creeks there is an unlimited amount of gold. I have a good claim on Oregon creek, 25 miles from Nome and 20 miles back from the coast. The latest important strike is on Kotzebue sound, bay of Good Hope, away off to the north of Nome. Another important strike that promises great results is in the Bluestone Creek district, west of Nome, and 20 miles south of Port Clarence, one of the two good harbors of western Alaska. The Blue Stone creek district has opened with a rush, and it seems to be fully as good as the famous Anvil creek, which cleaned up $2,000,000 this year. One of the peculiar features about Bluestone is that it was discovered and opened up by 'tenderfeet.' An experienced miner and his nephew were asked to go and look it over. The old miner went all over the territory and told his friends that there was not anything there worth the while and came away. Afterward the 'tenderfeet' came along and opened the district, with great results. Between 6,000 and 7,000 men are wintering at Nome and doing what work they can. All last year there were between 25,000 and 30,000 in and around Nome. The general health was excellent, and in this the people were happily disappointed. The run of typhoid in 1899 led everyone to believe that disease would again be prevalent, but the deaths were exceedingly rare this year. There were a good many fights over territorial rights early in the season, but things have settled down now. Judge Stevens sits in criminal cases and Judge Noyes is the district judge. Both are doing excellent work."

awaiting a decision of the supreme court in another case as to whether the state's prison is such a corporation as can be sued. If this decision is to the effect that the state's prison can be sued the attorney of Johnson intends to sue for a large sum in damages, for the false imprisonment, which lasted eight years.

THE SUMMER WIND.

The breezes come, the breezes pass,
And up the glen they run, revealed Against an overhanging field
Of gleaming undulating grass.

Like benedictions on the earth,
Like blessings on the summer day,
They make a soul more glad than gay,
And wake a joy more deep than mirth.

The troubles of the town increase;
But here there is no stir nor strife,
And here 'tis good to bring a life
To be persuaded back to peace.

I wis the year contained a day
When none shall suffer, die or weep;
One rest for all upon the steep,
One well for all beside the way.

The town is very tired. Alas!
Its thin smile cannot mask its pain;
And they are rich enough who gain
Cool breezes and a couch of grass.

THE WAY OF A CAD

"I DON'T agree with you! I see no obligation whatsoever. To be quite frank—"

He paused abruptly. He was actually blushing; but the faint tinge faded quickly from his cheeks and left them unusually pallid.

"Yes?" said Lieut. Winston, encouragingly and quite unblushingly.

"Oh, I don't know!" stammered the other man. "Are you really serious? If so, you must be—pardon me for saying so—either the most heartless beggar I ever met or the most absurdly sensitive."

"In other words, a knave or a blithering idiot—eh, Metford, old chap?" said Winston, cheerily.

"Exactly! I hope it is only a case of temporary insanity."

Dr. Metford was one of the ablest of the younger physicians in the West End of London; but, being also one of the most stupidly modest of clever men, his professional income barely sufficed to pay the rental of his rooms in Gower street. Some day he may discover that it is possible to be over-modest and that inward self-depreciation leads to penury, and then he will remove to Harley street and begin to make progress towards affluence.

Winston did not fail to observe the tinge of color on the doctor's face, nor its quick disappearance, but he gave no sign of recognition. Never before had he seen his old college chum look half so handsome as when that fleeting show of rosy color tinted the man's cheeks, nor half so pathetically glum as when it vanished.

"She saved my life. I think you will admit that, doctor? How many women would have taken the risks that she took? Would any other woman in the world have sacrificed herself as she did?"

"Any number of them!" declared the doctor, sententiously, although a fitting smile upon his face said: "None of them, bless her!"

"You medical men are utterly heartless cynics," protested Winston, shrugging his broad shoulders.

"Utterly," admitted Metford.

"Now, I am so unromantic as to attribute your recovery chiefly to your cast-iron constitution, a rattling good physician—must sound by own trumpet if you won't blow it for me—and Old Nick's merciful consideration. Your cup of iniquity is not yet quite brimful; your liver and all the rest of you, including your heart, is as sound as a bell!"

"I know well what I owe to you, Metford, old chap!" said the convalescent in a grateful tone and with an affectionate grasp of the biceps of the doctor's nearest arm. "You don't appear to be aware of it, but you're a long way the cleverest medicine man in London, head and shoulders above all the rest of 'em. If you weren't such a confoundedly modest beast—"

"Skittles!" interjected his physician, in much confusion. "You can't think how I hate that kind of talk!"

"Nevertheless, I mean it, old chap! Just you think the matter over seriously! Well, to proceed: My sister Jess says that Miss Wethered—who, by the way, comes of tolerably good stock—was very different from the ordinary professional nurse, and that, during those weeks when my very valuable life hung on a very slender thread, she absolutely sacrificed herself to save me. My recovery, Jess says, is due entirely to her devotion. Not very complimentary to you, eh?"

"Mrs. Trevelyan is modest and every other grace personified!" declared Dr. Metford. "So far as I could see, she 'sacrificed' herself almost, if not quite, as magnificently as—as the—paid nurse!"

"Be that as it may," persisted Winston. "I have chatted the matter over very seriously with my sister, and she says, imprimis, that Mary Wethered is, barring the wings, an angel; secondly, that the said angel without wings would make a jewel of a wife; and thirdly and most troublesomely, that I shall be the most ungrateful beast on earth and stupidest old duffer if I don't straightway let the lady know I think so. Unfortunately, as I protested to my sister and have admitted to you, I can't honestly say that I am the least bit in love with Miss Wethered. I like her very much, you know, and all that sort of thing—possibly more than I like any other girl of my acquaintance—and I have reason to believe that she is not entirely indifferent to me, and that if I only—"

The doctor's lips curved scornfully, involuntarily, and a glow of color that was hardly a blush suffused his face.

"And Jess tells me," continued the young officer, imperturbably, "that I might do a very much worse thing than marry Mary Wethered. You know, old chap, I've led a devil of a life in India and elsewhere! Terrible lot of racketing! We army men, you know—! So, you see, old fellow, I—er—oh—you know—I—well—er—love is for me a dream of the joyful past, and not a vision of the future. Miss Wethered's knowledge of nursing might be invaluable to me."

Metford groaned audibly. "It must not be!" he exclaimed, indignantly. ("Shall not be!" he muttered, inwardly.) "You don't love the girl, you have admitted it; you are not half as fond of her as of that newest pup of yours." ("I would die to save her half a moment's pain, and I don't suppose she cares a straw for me," he reflected, bitterly.) "I feel like kicking you!"

He looked like kicking likewise.

"Kick me, or thump me, or do what you will, old chap! My feeling is just this: I am a worthless sort of fellow, have gone the pace, and don't deserve the love of any woman in the world—"

"What man ever did?" growled Metford.

"Oh, but you haven't a notion what a thorough bad lot I've been! Don't look so unbelieving!" proceeded the kickworthy convalescent. "I was going to tell you something that Jess told me which makes me tolerably sure that Miss Wethered—but you would only scoff. I never knew such a fellow as you, upon my word!"

Metford smiled illegibly.

"The position is a very simple one," he said. "Assuming that from what your sister has been—pardon me for saying so—unwisely suggesting to you, Mary—I mean, Miss Wethered—cares enough for you to marry you, a worthless and heartless but tolerably good-looking chap like you, who, as you justly remark, don't deserve the love of any woman, nor, for that matter, the succession to one of the oldest and wealthiest baronetcies in England—"

He paused, his face white and drawn, lines visible upon it that were not there when this debate began.

"You haven't any love to offer her. You don't know what love is. You merely want to cancel a supposed debt of gratitude by offering her your looks, your wealth—everything you have except the only thing that a woman like Mary Wethered hungers for!"

He was becoming eloquent, too eloquent, and he perceived it.

"Love will come later," Winston answered, confidently; "gratitude is said to be akin to love. The girl is not quite 'my style,' I admit, but I like her—I really do, old chap! She is passably good-looking, although, I suppose, one could hardly call her pretty—"

Metford snorted. "Sings well—sufficiently well, that is, for drawing-room purposes. Don't look so beastly scornful! Of course, you can't appreciate anything humbler than Italian opera. She plays the piano nearly as well as Jess does, talks interestingly, and has, I must say, the gentlest voice imaginable. Whatever you may choose to say, you old calculating cynic, I am more and more inclined to agree with my sister Jess that if I return to India without asking the girl to be my wife I shall be the stupidest, most ungrateful and most contemptible beast on earth."

"I warn you," said Metford, warmly, "that if you pretend love to Miss Wethered and let her pledge herself to you you will repent yourself within a week, and the girl will find you out and be the most miserable woman on God's earth. You won't listen to my words of wisdom, of course; for of all the pig-headed, obstinate mules—"

"A somewhat mixed metaphor!" laughed Winston, unabashed.

"Mixed metaphor be hanged! Be a man and a gentleman! Go away undecidated, and if, after you have had six months to think about it, you feel something more than gratitude stirring within your bosom, get six months' leave, return to England, insert your head into the matrimonial noose—and be hanged to you!"

"Beastly old cynic!" declared the blase lieutenant. "I like your confounded impudence talking about love. Why, I don't believe you possess even the rudiments of a heart! Damned good chap, all the same! You shall be my best man. To-morrow or the next day I shall indite a hyperbolic epistle to Miss Mary, asking whether she cares enough for a fellow to wait for him until he gets his captaincy. 'It may be for years,' as the song says; but I flatter myself I am well worth waiting for, and I don't propose to take the risk of any other fellow—a cold-blooded chap like you, for instance—stepping into the lists during my absence!"

Metford was speechless with contempt. That Winston should have proved himself such an unmitigated cad!

The funny part of it was that Miss Wethered, who was taking a brief rest at the seaside, received two letters by the morrow's mail—one from the "unmitigated cad," thanking her "ever so much" for all her kindness to him during his protracted illness; the other from the "beastly old cynic," the reply to which—it seems almost like sacrilege to print it—was as follows:

Dear Dr. Metford: I am so glad! How glad I cannot tell you! I have loved you ever since the day that I first met you, but I never dared to hope that I should be honored with your love. Very sincerely yours, MARY WETHERED.

And this is the letter that sister Jessie wrote a day or two thereafter to her graceless brother:

My Darling Boy: You did it beautifully. If I were queen, you should be decorated with a cross for most conspicuous gallantry. I know how fond of the girl you had to act as you did. It was very hard work, wasn't it, poor boy? Mary is overjoyed. Some day, when she has been married a year or so, I may let her into part of the secret of our conspiracy. But "mum's the word" for the present. —Chicago Herald.

Most Elastic Substances.
Rubber, spun glass, steel and ivory are the most elastic substances.

The stomach controls the situation. Those who are hearty and strong are those who can eat and digest plenty of food. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and allows you to eat all the good food you want. If you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, belching or any other stomach trouble, this preparation can't help but do you good. The most sensitive stomachs can take it. Howard Gardner.

A THOUSAND TONGUES.

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c. and $1. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug store; every bottle guaranteed.

Like Oliver Twist, children ask for more when given One Minute Cough Cure. Mothers endorse it highly for croup. It quickly cures all coughs and colds and every throat and lung trouble. It is a specific for gripe and asthma and has long been a well known remedy for whooping cough. Howard Gardner.

SORES AND ULCERS.

Sores and Ulcers never become chronic unless the blood is in poor condition—is sluggish, weak and unable to throw off the poisons that accumulate in it. The system must be relieved of the unhealthy matter through the sores, and great danger to life would follow should it heal before the blood has been made pure and healthy and all impurities eliminated from the system. S. S. S. begins the cure by first cleansing and invigorating the blood, building up the general health and removing from the system A CONSTANT DRAIN
all morbid, effeminate matter. UPON THE SYSTEM.

When this has been accomplished the discharge gradually ceases, and the sore or ulcer heals. It is the tendency of these old indolent sores to grow worse and worse, and eventually to destroy the bones. Local applications, while soothing and to some extent alleviate pain, cannot reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. does, and no matter how apparently hopeless your condition, even though your constitution has broken down, it will bring relief when nothing else can. It supplies the rich, pure blood necessary to heal the sore and nourish the debilitated, diseased body.

Mr. J. B. Talbert, Lock Box 245, Winona, Minn., says: "Six years ago my leg from the knee to the foot was one solid sore. Several physicians treated me and I made two trips to Hot Springs, but found no relief. I was induced to try S. S. S., and it made a complete cure. I have been a perfectly well man ever since."

SSS is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known—contains no poisonous minerals to ruin the digestion and add to, rather than relieve your sufferings. If your flesh does not heal readily when scratched, bruised or cut, your blood is in bad condition, and any ordinary sore is apt to become chronic.

Send for our free book and write our physicians about your case. We make no charge for this service.

with all children.

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver build you up at once—of course, it don't show at once.

"Not doing well" means that the child is not getting the good of his food. Not today, or this week; it may have been going on for a month; before it begins to show in the child's condition.

You want him to get back

You want the food that begins to build, up at once.

Where Tramps Get Their Gall.
It has been told frequently by persons who claim to be connoisseurs on cooked birds of all kinds that the only proper way to prepare a squab for the table is to incase it in mud and leave it on the burning coals, then remove it, break the mud and the squab rolls out splendidly cooked and fit for the gods to eat.

A tramp who applied for lodging at Central police station the other night said the same rule was true in the cooking of spring chickens. "The tramps' way to cook chicken is the only way," said he. "Steal one for yourself, wring her head off, pack her into a handful of mud, throw her in the fire, leave her there for about 40 minutes, jerk her out, break the mud shell, and there you are, a la Waldorf-Astoria. Why, it can't be beat."

"But what becomes of the feathers?"
"O, they just burn and evaporate, so to speak. You never see them after the chicken is taken out of the fire."

"How about the gall?"
"O, that's where the tramps get their gall."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A New Jersey Epitaph.
A visitor to a cemetery at South Vernon, N. H., will find the following upon a gravestone there:

O be she went and am she gone
And left poor I here all alone?
O, cruel fate, to be so blind
To take her 'fore and leave I 'hind;
Her can never come back to me,
But us must surely go to she.

CHANGING A STATE.

The Face of Massachusetts Will Be Altered by a Reservoir.

The site selected for Boston's new reservoir is in one of the prettiest counties of central Massachusetts, writes H. H. Lewis in Ainslee's. It is about 35 miles northwest of Boston and about seven miles northeast of Worcester. The contour of the valley, broad here and there and narrowing to almost a gulch near Clinton, seems fitted by nature for just such usage. The scenery is diversified, consisting of hills, vales and woods. Nearby toward the north stands Mount Wachusett like a guardian sentinel. The climate is that of New England, somewhat drear in winter, but hospitable, kindly and open. On account of the rocky nature of the soil very little opportunity is afforded for agricultural pursuits, and the population is therefore small, being only 69 to the square mile. This point, it will be easily understood, had considerable bearing on the selection of the site.

To secure a supply of pure water for a multitude of people it was necessary to collect that water from a shed unpolluted by the living or by the dead. A population of 69 to the square mile was not dense enough to afford even a suspicion of danger.

A proof of the broad spirit shown by the commissioners and their grasp of engineering feats is given in their treatment of the mechanical problems presented in planning the reservoir. The flooding of a valley even sparsely settled meant the annihilation of homes, the wiping out of small towns, the destruction of farms and the changing of the course of public roads and railways. These problems were looked upon as mere details by this daring board.

When it was estimated that a total of 5,163 acres were to be taken from the different towns in the valley, to-wit: Clinton, 1,125 acres; Boylston, 2,761 acres; West Boylston, 870 acres, and Sterling, 407 acres, and that the lands required for the reservoir contained six large mills, eight schoolhouses, four churches, 360 dwellinghouses, a large Catholic cemetery and a railroad, all of which it was necessary to remove, the board simply made plans for the work as a farmer would make plans for ridding a newly acquired strip of land of obstructing stumps and rocks.

Three principal features in connection with the construction of the reservoir are the removal of six and a half miles of the Central Massachusetts railroad and its relocation upon the side of the reservoir, the destruction or removal, partial or complete, of the towns already mentioned and the building of the great dam at Clinton. Of these three possibly the question of changing the railway bed is the least important, although it is an event worthy of note.

The work presenting the greatest picturesque feature in the construction of the Wachusett reservoir is the demolition of West Boylston and Oakdale. Both these places were thriving towns with important woolen mill interests. They had existed for a number of years, and were growing slowly, but with the steadiness of New England towns. They were model communities in their way, their citizens God-fearing and upright.

When the news came to the good people of Oakdale and West Boylston that the "city," as they call Boston, was about to reach out like an octopus of the deep and devour their little communities, they were loath to believe it. And when it was understood that their homes, their hearth-stones and the graves of their fathers were to be covered forever by the waters of a great reservoir they rebelled.

The fact that the state fully intended to make adequate financial restitution offered no balm. No amount of money could offset the heart-break at leaving the spot where a family had been rooted for a century. It was some time before the people of West Boylston and of Oakdale became reconciled to their impending eviction, as it might be called. It must be said that the state was perfectly fair in awarding damages. Average prices were allowed for every piece of property taken, but wherever a tendency was shown by a land proprietor to "gouge" the board he was fought relentlessly. In one case where a certain Italian demanded an exorbitant amount for a wooden shanty, the board needing only half the space occupied by the structure, calmly cut it in two and paid the man only one-half of the assessed valuation.

In awarding damages caused by the building of the great reservoir the state of Massachusetts has established an important precedent. When a town like West Boylston is practically wiped out it is understood that the owners of property must be compensated for the losses sustained by them, and also it is necessary to pay for damages sustained by storekeepers and manufacturers. All this the state did, and then went a step further. It passed a law awarding damages to ordinary workmen, mill hands and the like, who suffered loss through the stoppage of their work.
